Public Hearings to Resume

Fulbright Sees Deception Or Misjudgment in Laos

By John W. Finney

(NYT).—The Senate Foreign Re-lations Committee, signaling an end to the truce in the Vietnam debate, decided vesterday to pro-ceed with public hearings on "how to end the war" in Indo-

In announcing the committee decision to the Senate, Sen. J. William Fulbright, the commit-tee chairman, said that the Nixon administration was guilty of elther "massive deception" or "massive misjudgment"—and perhaps both-in the U.S.-supported South Vietnamese operation into Laos. Citing the five principal objectives that he contended the administration had laid down for the operation in a Feb. 9 briefing of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sen. Fulbright suggested that the operation had failed to achieve any of them and tions about the strength and reaction of North Vietnamese forces. Out of deference to the President, the committee, at the suggestion of Republicans, decided not to begin the hearings until after President Nixon announced his new troop withdrawal schedule in April. But aside from this accommodation, it was apparent that the Vietnam debate was about to resume in the Senate with perhaps greater vigor than ever in challenging the administration's policies. Committee 'Muted'

As Sen. Fulbright observed, the Foreign Relations Committee— the center of the Vietnam opposition in the Senate—has been "muted" since the Laotian operation began in early February, partly "because we did not want to do anything that might remotely be construed as a cause for failure of an operation already under way but about which we all had most serious and profound doubts."

With the start of the operation, the committee postponed plans to hold a series of hearings on how to end the war. At a private meeting Feb. 9, the committee also entered into an informal pact with Secretary of State William P. Rogers to restrain its criticism and not create a "domestic fusa" over the Laotian operation. Now that the Laotian operation is over, Sen. Fulbright made it clear that he no longer feels bound to maintain his silence. In explaining his decision to speak out, he told the Senate: Were I to remain silent, I would be a partner to what is either a massive deception of the American people or what is a massive misjudgment on the part of our political or military lead-

Furthermore, Sen, Fulbright said in a prepared speech, he could not remain silent "when we are being told that the Laos operation went according to plan, when I know it did not go according to plan."

In support of his contention, Sen. Fulbright noted that on Feb. 9-just as the South Vietnamese invasion of Laos was beginning the committee had been briefed on the objectives of the operation by Mr. Rogers and Lt. Gen. John W. Vogt jr., director of the joint staff in the Pentagon. Sen. Fulbright said that now that the operation is over, he has asked Mr. Rogers to declassify the briefing, but the senator obvious-ly set forth the objectives presented to the committee in asking the administration to answer the following questions in "clear and unequivocal language": • "Was the concept of the operation in Laos to proceed in and beyond Sepone and to establish blocking positions on the main intersections of Routes 91, 11, 92 and 23?

• "Was it hoped that the operation would prevent the flow of

Muskie Regrets His Silence on Vietnam Doubts WASHINGTON, March 31

(NYT).—Sen. Edmund S. Müskle, D., Maine, says he is sorry now that he did not make public as far back as 1965 his "real doubts about our involvement" in the Vietnam war. Instead, he said, voiced his concerns privately to President Lyndon B. Johnson Sen. Muskie expressed his regret about past slience on the war effort during a 90-minute tele-vision appearance on the "David Frost Show." The interview, taped several days ago, was to be tele-vised tonight in most major American cities.

As a leading, though undeclared candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972, Sen. Musicle is said to consider his brief history of opposition to the war as his chief hurdle. He defended the Johnson administra-tion's conduct of the war while campaigning in 1988 for the vice-presidency and did not publicly declare his opposition to a con-tinued American role until October, 1970. But the senator told Mr. Frost that he returned from an inspec-tion trip in Asia in 1965 with private doubts about the war.

Democrats In House Vote Against War

By Richard L. Lyons

WASHINGTON, March 31 (WP) .- For the first time, majority of House Democrats went on record against the war today with a resolution that the United States should end its military involvement in Indochina by the end of 1972.

The resolution, adopted at a party caucus by a vote of 138-62 of the 254 Democratic House members, said:

"Resolved, that it is the sense of the Democratic Caucus of the House of Representatives that in the 92d Cognress the House of Representatives should work to end the United States military involvement in Indochina and to bring about the release of all prisoners at a time certain during the 92d Congress.

"Resolved further, that in pursuit of these objectives the Democratic Caucus urges full support wherever possible by both ouse Democrats and Republicans of the initiatives of the President, the House committees and members, and the Senate, which may be pertinent to these ends." of administration policy claimed a victory. The House Republican leader. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, issued a statement applauding the Democrats for "urging full support of President Nixon's initiatives for peace." Rep. Sam Gibbons, D., Fig., a principal sponsor of a resolution insisting that the United States get out of Indochina by the end of this year, instead of next year, said:

"I'm really happy. If you had said a month ago that House Democrats would go this far. I'd say you were dreaming. For the first time, we have a majority of House Democrats voting to end the war. The only dispute is over timing."

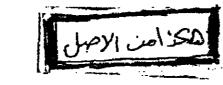

The crucial vote was a 101-100 rollcall to substitute 1972 for 1971 as the target date for complete withdrawal. When this was adopted, almost all of the "doves" and many administration sup-porters joined on the final vote to support the compromise.

"We failed by only one vote," said Rep. Spark Matsunaga. D., Hawaii, another sponsor of the original proposal to get out by the end of this year. "We consider this to be a victory in that we did come out with a resolution clarifying the position taken by Senate Democrats that... we meant sometime during the 92d Congress."

Many Enrolled In U.S. Pensions Never Benefit

WASHINGTON, Merch 31 (UPI).—A survey by the Senate labor subcommittee showed today that only a small fraction of American workers who leave their jobs before reaching retirement age can expect to collect anything from the billions of dollars invested in pension plans in their benali.

The study of 87 pension plans in existence, since 1950 which covered 9.8 million workers who ieft work early showed that only about 1 million of them will ever receive a pension

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R., N.Y., said the survey disclosed the failure of a major American institution, the private pension system. He said a law is needed to guarantee workers at least a portion of their pension if they quit or are fired before reaching retirement age.

Fifty-one of the 87 pension plans surveyed required 11 years or more of employment before workers could benefit eventually. Of those plans, 92 percent of the 6.9 million workers who left employment before retirement age since 1950 received nothing.

DDT Alters 'Genetic Pool,' Biologist Says

LOS ANGELES, March 31.— DDT is almost certainly the mysterious force that science recently has discovered to be affecting the genetic inheritance of animals, a biologist said yes-

Dr. Lawrence Cory, professor of biology at St. Mary's College, said it is irrelevant to argue that DDT has had no observable harmful effects on man and no provable ones on other species.

Dr. Cory said DDT represents a large-scale tinkering with the "genetic pool" of living species of animals. He was speaking at the 161st national meeting of the American Chemical Society.

That there is a force affecting the genetic apparatus of animals has been known for about 25 years, Dr. Cory said in an inter-

Dr. Cory thinks DDT acts as a selector, or an environmental force that affects natural selection. So far, no physical changes have been noticed that can be said to be the result from the genetic interference of DDT, but the insecticide has caused a larger and larger proportion of the entire fruit fly population to have inverted chromosomes. 'This can be genetically dan-gerous, he said. "The state that fruit flies or other organisms have achieved over millions of years of evolution represents the most successful adaptations, and therefore the best for continued existence," said Dr. Cory.

Heart Recipient Fractures Ribs. Condition 'Good'

ANN ARBOR, Mich., March 31 (AP).-Donald L. Kaminski, who has lived more than two years with a transplanted heart, was reported in good condition at University of Michigan Hospital last night after suffering three fractured ribs and facial cuts in an accident in which his car was declared a total wreck.

Police said they have charged the 42-year-old grandfather of four with careless driving after his car went out of control and smashed into a guardrail about 3 a.m. yesterday on a Detroit freeway. Police said he was alone at the time of the accident.

Dr. Donald Kahn, who led the University of Michigan surgical team in the transplant operation Dec. 2, 1968, said the fractured ribs were on Mr. Kaminski's right side and there appeared to be no bruise or injury to the heart. A hospital spokesman said a normal recovery was expected.

The motion is the first of many being prepared by the defense. Others are expected to seek discovery of some government evidence, including documents and recordings of any electronic devices, and to seek dismissal of the indictments on constitutional and other grounds.

Defense attorneys contend that a bill of particulars pursuant to the federal rules of criminal procedure is necessary to adequately apprise each defendant of the nature and cause of accusations so that each defendant can adequately prepare a defense. Unless specifics are provided, their motion contended, "the indictment charges only an agreement upon an idea, an abstraction. Only if the abstraction is made concrete by specifics does a conspiracy charge become meaningful, or only then does the indictment charge an agreement to do acts."

The attorneys contended specific information is "par-ticularly important in conspiracy prosecutions where the essence of the crime is intangible agreement, a meeting of minds, rather than an observable, specific, objective criminal act."

Attorneys in addition to Mr. Clark, who signed the motion, were J. Thomas Menaker of Harrisburg: the Rev. William C. Cunningham of Chicago's Loyola University Law School; Addison M. Bowman of Washington's Georgetown University Law School; Francis X. Gallagher of

2d Bid to Stimulate Economy

Britain to Boost Its Outlay To Widows, Elderly and Sick

LONDON, March 31 (UPI),stantial increases today in welfare state payments for the very elderly, the sick, for widows and children in its second effort to stimulate consumer spending in two days.

The increases followed the Conservative government's first budget yesterday providing for a reform and reduction in income taxes and a £250 million ($600million) stimulus to the nation's Sir Keith Joseph, secretary for social services, told the House of Commons that Britain would provide more for those who need it most. There are gaps that need to be filled," he said in announcing the increases, "We have put the chronic sick and the very old as our priorities this time." Weekly government pensions for Britain's 1.2 million persons over the age of 80 will be increased by 80 new pence ($1.44) to £6.25 ($15). Welfare payments to men who fall chronically sick at the age of 30, for example, with two children and a wife will be increased by nearly 50 percent to £16.60 a The weekly government allowance paid to widows will be in-creased by £1.40 to £8.40.

The weekly allowance paid to parents to help in child maintenance will be increased by 30 new pence to £1.85 for the first child 30 pence for the second child, and 85 pence for any other children. But Sir Keith said the increases

Brezhnev Speaks

Those who expected major surprises or dramatic charges in policy from Leonid I. Brezhnev's keynote address to the Soviet Communist party congress yesterday were disappointed. The biggest surprise was that the speec. was televised live, a fact probably attributable to Mr. Brezhnev's interest in enhancing his image with the Soviet masses. But there was no reinstatement of Stalin or other comparable major change in the party

It was probably not accidental that on the day Mr. Brezhnev spoke the Soviet delegate to the disarmament conference in Geneva agreed to negotiate a ban exclusively on biological weapons rather than insisting, as earlier, on a treaty dealing with both biological and chemical weapons.

This significant, though marginal change was very much in the spirit of the Brezhnev address. Without retreating on any of the well-known positions of Soviet foreign policy. the party's general secretary stressed his nation's interest in negotiated settlements and in improved relations with all nations from the United States to the Chinese People's

That emphasis is welcome, though it is patent that in Brezhnev's view it is other nations that must make all or most of the concessions. The double standard central to his view of the world was particularly evident in his defense of the Soviet armed subjugation of Czechoslovakia.

Mr. Brezhnev's evident distaste for further complication of the world situation is partly explained by his need to do better in improving the Soviet domestic standard of living. Russian auditors undoubtedly found his stress on the importance of raising consumer-goods production the most welcome portion of his six-hour speech. And, while the Brezhnev thesis was in effect that the Soviet Union is now rich enough to afford both missiles and butter, it is plain that the less it spends on arms the more resources it has available for consumers.

It seems likely that Mr. Brezhnev had memories of last December's unrest in Gdansk and other Polish Baltic port cities very much in mind as he prepared his statement of the party line. The moral he seems to have drawn is that any similar awkward developments in the Soviet Union can best be avoided if the Kremlin more adequately satisfies the keen appetites of its people for decent housing, meat and other quality foods, automobiles and reasonably priced

If this political imperative helps strengthen the forces making for caution and rationality in Soviet foreign policy, all peoples will

The Calley Verdict

It was apparent from the moment the Calley verdict was announced that the conscience of America was ripped apart. But if too many allow deep emotions to warp their perspective, America will be hurt. Somehow the entire national frustration of our agonizing war in Vietnam, from every point of view, got caught up in the charges against and the trial of Lt. Calley.

-From the Columbus Enquirer (Ga.). * * *

The jury did its duty as it saw that duty. We don't quarrel with it. No matter who or what was to blame, what happened at My Lai was horribly wrong. To deny this would be to deny everything religion and ethics have to teach us.

-From the Atlanta Constitution, * * *

The Army should not yield to temptation to close the case. If there are others who are thought to have shared in the blame. then they, too, should be subject to courts-

-From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The punishment of Calley and of others his superior who face trial by court-martial will do little to ease the American conscience over the awful events at My Lai. One other point needs to be made: In a good many countries, North Vietnam among them, happenings like this would not tear at the national conscience, and men like Calley would be given medals, not court-martial. -From the Oregon Journal.

The arguments on the sentencing of Lt. Calley begin today. The arguments on the verdict have barely started; unless they lead to full exploration of the role of men far more eminent than William Calley-whether before military or congressional tribunals, or both—the United States will have lost both conscience and honor as surely as it has lost its way in Indochina.

-From the New York Post. * * *

The verdict of premeditated murder may seem harsh considering the emotional stresses under which soldiers act. But in our view there could have been no other. It amounts to a national concession-a groping toward atonement. They won't make the scar disappear from the American conscience, but it is a recognition of wrong. -From Chicago Today.

* * * If Calley is to be punished why not indict all the way up the chain of command to the White House? The military jury had no choice but to convict Calley because he failed to exercise the moral option allowed by the laws of warfare. The very practical need now is not more violence but more sober reflection by the American people. That is one reason we hope the jury spares Lt. Calley's life. That also is why we hope Congress will appoint a high commission to answer the larger questions of other war crimes in Indochina.

-From the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Times.

The jury was faced with evidence of deeds done by a sane man, deeds prohibited by those laws the nation has adopted to bring a semblance of decency to even the horrors of war. It was the question of the personal responsibility of this particular Army officer the jury addressed itself to. On the evidence, the verdict was just, and it was

> -From the Los Angeles Times. * * *

Having condemned Calley, the Pentagon would like to end the matter there and calm American public opinion as well as producing "an appropriate impression" abroad. But it will not succeed in deceiving millions of Americans, millions of people throughout the world who demand an immediate end to mass crimes in Vietnam.

-From Pravda (Moscow).

We pity Lieutenant Calley not only because of the hideous probem he was set in Vietnam but aso because of his pathetically humble status-too lowly, we feel, to bear all the blame which has been successfully loaded onto him. Suppose that My Lai had been a glorious victory, or so regarded; think how Lieutenant Calley's superiors would then have pressed forward, pushing him into the background, claiming credit for having directed even the minutest details, clamoring for their medals and citations. Yet My Lai was a disgrace, and so the brasshats tip-toe silently away, leaving Lieutenant Calley toface the music alone.

-From the Daily Telegraph (London). * * *

The trial of Lieutenant Calley may well affect the United States Army wholly for good. It will not discourage men from risking their lives for their country. America's case for being in Vietnam is based on moral considerations. Such a case cannot square with descending to totalitarian methods even on the plea that Hanoi does so. To do so is to lose the war as surely as to be beaten in

-From the Times (London). * * *

So America has found Lieutenant Calley guilty. Guilty of murder. Guilty of the premeditated murder of 22 unarmed people. Sad, sad, sad, that it should have happened. Sad that a mere lieutenant should be carrying the can for Vietnam. But good for America. Would Russia have staged this trial? Or come to this conclusion?

-From the Sun (London).

The Soviet Congress

This week's congress marks one big economic difference from the last Khrushchev congress in 1961, alming in bombastic terms to outstrip the United States in industrial and agricultural production by 1970. This congress comes at a time when the talk is all of bringing in Western capital and technology to give the economy a short cut to modernization. This imported technology is bound to have profound repercussions on the country's system of economic organization if it is to be successful.

Already, for example, the giant Fiat factory at Togliattigrad is behind schedule. Although the capital plant is there, it is proving difficult to bring old-fashioned Soviet labor organization into line. Directed labor cannot operate a technology that needs workers with material incentives, bonuses and flexible schedules.

NEW YORK.—Leonid I. Brezhney's speech to the 24th Communist party congress in Moscow is a little like President Nixon's recent State of the World message to the U.S. Congress. It is long, vague, and hopeful— a little something for everybody but essentially it is an exercise in public relations rather than a practical busis for serious negotiation. The tone is conciliatory, but the substance is familiar and one-sided. He wants "final recognition" of the territorial changes that took place in Europe after the Second World War -that is, general acceptance of the division of Germany and Europe as a permanent condition of the European states. He wants the annulment of the Warsaw and NATO military alliances and the "dismantling of foreign bases"-that is, he wants the Americans to go home, leaving the Red Army as the sole dominant military force on the threshold of Europe.

He wants "the abolition of the remaining colonial regimes" that is to say the final dismemherment of the old Western empires and the abolition of the old imperialism, but not the dismemberment of the new Communist empire or the new Com-munist imperialism.

'Resolute Struggle' "We declare that." he said, "while consistently pursuing its policy of peace and friendship among nations, the Soviet Union will continue to conduct a resolute struggie against imperialism. and firmly to rebuff the evil designs and subversions of aggres-

Translated into the principles of Marxism and Leninism, this means the Soviet Union is following a policy of peace and friendship in Indochina, the Middle East and Cuba, for example, while the United States is pursuing a policy of aggression, subversion, and imperialism in these places.

Well, "peace and friendship" on this basis, with control in the hands of men who make six-hour speeches, would not be a very cheerful prospect, but Brezhnev's long-delayed pronunciamento could have been worse.

He says he wants good relations with the United States. China, Yugoslavia and even West Germany, and his proposals for conferences on nuclear arms and disarmament, for a ban on nuclear, chemical and bacteriological weapons, for a reduction of arms in critical areas of confrontation, for nuclear-free zones in sensitive areas of the world and for cooperation to improve the environment of the globeall this is well worth careful ex-

One of the troubling aspects of the world situation at the present time is that the great powers, outside their talks on the Middle East and the limitation of strategic weapons systems, are concentrating on relatively small differences rather than getting down to the momentous issues where they both stand to gain by accommodation.

Doubts on Peking

It is doubtful that China will respond favorably to Brezhnev's proposal for a conference of the world nuclear powers—and even Washington has some doubts about the wisdom of such a parley in the foreseeable future—but it would be a pity to reject this suggestion out of hand and give Moscow a monopoly on propaganda for nuclear disarmament. The proposal for limiting arms in critical areas such as Central Europe also raises the possibility of mutual advantage. What Moscow would like-has wanted ever since the end of the last war-is to change the whole balance of power in Europe by persuading a European conference to invite the United States to withdraw southern flank of Western Eufrom the Continent. This is

As Europe's Capital

A Pitch for Paris

By James Goldsborough

PARIS.—A handful of Frenchmen have launched a serious campaign to make Paris the capital of Europe and bring here the European institutions now in Strasbourg, Luxembourg and Brussels.

The Trivial Paris of Frenchmen have launched a serious could yeto the project—though come country alone, especially of Belgium's size, might have difficulty. For Belgium, it would be a crippling blow to lose the commission. For not only have the Belgium's provided the prosent.

The Frenchmen who have formed a group called le Comité pour la Capitale Européenne. have gone so far as to have a member of the National Assembly ask the government for a decision on their project. They have formed an active lobby and claim they have solid support from officials in all the Common Market countries and Britain.

The Belgians, who would be most affected by such a move, still claim they are unworried. But privately they have put out feelers to measure their support and to see what countries would vote with them if it came to a test of strength with France. "We still have some friends."

was the way Belgian Foreign Minister Pierre Harmel put it when asked about the matter.

Stakes Are Big

The stakes are tremendous. The capital of a unified Europe would emplor upwards of 10,000 civil servants, would represent uncalculated investment and would probably need its own indepen-dent statute to keep it independent of the host country. The Prenchmen, envisaging this, are promising the statute and the land. For the Common Market countries, now paying almost $5 million per year to rent their new $72 million Brussels facilities plus the old facilities from the Belgian government, this would be an attractive offer.

The lobbying for the project is being carried out by Herve Lavenir, a French civil servant who was suspended from his job with the EEC's Executive Commission a few years back for public criti-cism of the body. As spokesman for the Comité, he is optimistic enough about his project to be leaving next week on an inspection of Brasilia, the futuristic capital of Brazil

The project backed by the Comité calls for the creation of the capital at Montesson, a flat plain tucked in a neck of the Seine a few miles west of Paris. It would be located on six square miles of land and be given "Vati-can-type" status, independent of the French government. It would offer a token payment of one franc a year to the French government, similar to the present French arrangement with UNESCO and the Italian arrangement with the UN Food and Agriculture Organization under what are known as accords de siege. The member nations would pay for the construction.

their success, the Comité actively has launched its campaign. 'Belgians Divided' "It comes down to Paris," said Mr. Layenir. "The Germans know they won't get it; the Dutch are too far north; the Italians too far south; Britain, if she jolns, is out of the question and even the Belgians are divided over Brussels. We have support in

Belgians provided the present facilities, but much of the international investment that has been attracted to Brussels in recent years was attracted because of its growing "European" status.

According to the Comité, Paris should have been the capital from the beginning, and it was only because of one man-former Premier Pierre Pflimlin—that

Bruscels, Strasbourg and Luxembourg were chosen as "provisional" capitals.

According to Mr. Lavenir, Mr.

Pflimlin, who is also Mayor of Strasbourg, ruled out the choice of Paris in 1958 when he thought he could get the newly formed EEC institutions for Strasbourg.

Instead, they were provisionally divided, with the commission going to Brussels, the European Parliament to Strasbourg and the Court of Justice and Coal and Steel Community to Luxenbourg.

The treaty of Rome provides that a final decision to create the permanent institutions will be taken by the member states at

The later date has been continually put off as the Six have not wanted to put any problems on their agends, that could be ment of the community under way and with solid hopes for every country for Paris." The Comité, which was formed in 1967 and which is supported by state funds, claims that the Flemings have always been hostile to putting the European institutions in Brussels, a city heavily dominated by the Frenchspeaking Walloons. It is true that several extremist Flemish groups opposed putting the com-mission in Brussels on the grounds that to increase the prosperity of Brussels would be to widen the gulf between Brussels and Flemish-dominated Bel-Despite the activity of the Comité, however, the French government has maintained a discreet silence. The official posttion here has been that France would be willing to consider the propositions to bring the capital here, but that the initiative should come from France's part-"The government will react eventually," said Mr. Lavenir, He points out that President Georges Pompidou spoke at his last press conference of the need to shift the European center of gravity southward if the new candidates join the Common Market, and that for the Comité that meant

Despite the rosy reports by the Comité, it is possible that the going will be more difficult than they think The commission is already in Brussels and it would not be the first time in the EEC's history that something provisional became permanent. Moreover, there are still a few people around who remember the French treatment of NATO, and some of them might feel more secure in Brussels.

Party Gives Servan-Schreiber a 'Holiday'

By James Goldsborough PARIS, March 31.-Jean-Jacones Servan-Schreiber, the controversial National Assembly deputy from Nancy, today was given a "holiday" as head of the Radical party so he would not be limited in carrying out his personal onslaught against the French political system.

Radical party spokesmen said that Mr. Servan-Schreiber had neither resigned nor been asked to resign, but that the "holiday" was in the "general interest." The spokesmen pointed out that Mr. Servan-Schreiber would no longer be constrained by the "prudence and discretion" that is required of the secretary-general of the

Municipal Election Defeats

The most recent attacks against his leadership came after this month's municipal elections, in which Mr. Servan-Schreiber's brand of centrist reformism was badly beaten by both the left and the right. Following the elections, Georges Bérard-Quelin, a former vice-president of the party and personal foe of Mr. Servan-Schreiber; attacked him as an "irresponsible caricature."

Saying that Mr. Servan-Schreiber had originally predicted Radical victory in all major French cities but Bordeaux and Strasbourg, Mr. Bérard-Quelin wrote after the elections that Mr. have the excuse of success."

School, Tax Bills Pass 1st Italian Parliament Tests

ROME, March 31 (UPI).-Two of Premier Emilio Colombo's big-gest reform bills passed the halfway mark in parliament yesterday.

The Senate Education Committee voted. 10 to 9, to approve a school reform bill and send it to the Chamber of Deputies. Only Mr. Colombo's Christian Democrats voted for the measures and their Socialist and Social Democratic coalition partners walked out in protest against an article that they said would favor nursery schools run by the Ro-man Catholic Church.

The Chamber of Deputies voted by 255 to 201 to pass a tax reform hill and send it to the senate. The reform, scheduled to go into effect next Jan. 1 if the senate nasses it in time, would streamline Italy's obsolete tax system, deducting workers' taxes from their paychecks in a consolidation of many small taxes. - A provision of the bill calls for a 12 percent value-added tax against which cafes, restaurants and bars struck for a day this month.

The Two Singing Howard Keels

By Henry Pleasants

ONDON, March 31.—The evening papers had carried the news of Frank Sinatra's retirement. Howard Keel topping the bill at The Talk of the Town. finished his entrance medley of songs from "Oklahoma!" then remarked to his listeners: "I guess that makes me just about the oldest crooner around."

Well, I thought to myself. Bing Crosby is still around, and he was singing in public, if not yet crowning, before Howard Keel was born, And Perry Como has a new album out, ingeniously—or ingenuously—titled "It's Impossible.' He was singing with Ted Weems when Keel was still in high school. Besides, whoever thought of Howard Keel as a crocner?

I had always thought of him.

along with Alfred Drake, as among the last of a breed of baritones and basses who could put over the songs of the American musicals with the robust, full-voiced resonance of opera them and their operatic counter-parts being that they were hand-somer, moved more fluently and were better actors. But there are. one learned in the course of an hour-long solo turn, two Howard Keels, vocally speaking. Two Keels tion suited to the on-mike sing-ing of contemporary songs. It's not that opera singers have not sung popular American songs. Most of them have done so at one time or another. But with the possible exception of Eileen Parrell, they have not sung them idiomatically. Their vocal produc-tion and their phrasing remain the same regardless of idiom. Keel has never sung leading roles in opera, but he was schooled as an opera singer, and in the songs from "Oklahoma!" and "Man of La Mancha" he sings like an opera singer.

And yet, in the Bacharach. Paul Simon and Francis Lai songs, he can ease off into a light head voice and adopt the style evolved by Crosby and perfected by Sinatra, exploiting the microphone to achieve a more conversational kind of vocal production and a more intimate, less formal, kind of phrasing. He even uses a guitar from time to time in the fashion of our latter-day troubadour young.

"I dldn't learn it from any voice teacher," he told me later, "nor even in a cabaret or nightclub. I learned in the Douglas Aircraft factory in Los Angeles. I used to sing while I worked. and the men on the floor didn't like it. They told me to shut up. Like every singer. But audiences today are conditioned to the amplified sound. And so he achieves his stylistic and idiomatic contrasts not by using and then discarding the mike. but by changing the way he sings

He is not quite utterly bi-vocal, if there is such a term. He is more at home, and more at ease idiomatically, in the old-fashioned, full-voiced style and in the material — The Impossible Dream" and "Old Man River," for example—that goes with it. But a singer who can also dare "My Way," a song so intimately associated with Frank Sinatra whom he greatly admires, sing it pretty much in the Sinatra style, and get away with it, is a versatile fellow. lot about France.
These puffs of cloud, maintained by hot air, are constructed on a solid scientific basis. If you follow the rules, they always succeed. They come under the category of Sacha Guitry's observation that France is the country which takes frivolous things seriously and serious things frivolous-ly. Behind all this nonsense, there is always considerable logic.

Thus it was that, ten years ago, when chef Andre Faure took over a restaurant in the heart of the luxury-tourist district, he named it Lc Soufflé. It was a way to make sure that all those visitors from abroad who frequent the area around the Ritz, the Place Vendôme and the Tuileries would immediately recognize his establishment as un restaurant bien français. He then arranged a repertory of souffles that ran the gamut from hors d'oeuvre to main course to dessert.

Cod Souffle As an opening gambit, the soufflé is generally checse. Por a main course, it might be cod or other serfood. The choice of cod was an attempt to offer something a little out of the

These puffic and local states of seal states.

The procession that the french eat souffles all the time. This isn't quite true. In a way, however, the souffle does say a lot about France.

These puffic does say a sauce armorizanc and fleck-on a sauce arm ed with morsels of erab, shrimp and langouste. The dessert soufflés are a giorious choice of Grand Marnier, respherry, hazelput and chocolate. They must be ordered at the beginning of the meal, unless you are willing to wait while they are being prepared.

During the raspberry season, Mr. Faure preserves enough fruit to last him throughout the year. The taste is fresh and delightful. Noisette contains whole hazelnuts. which makes for an occasional and pleasant crunch, but the overall texture is a little too heavy. Mr. Faure agrees.

Le Soufflé is a very charming restaurant with particularly amiable service. If you are not enthusiastic about souffles, you can bypass them completely—there are a number of other tempting possibilities. The fond d'artichent courmande is worth attention. Sliced raw mushrooms, impeccabic white, are heaped on an attichoke heart and then topped with mayonnaise and a sprinkly of choped parsley. The mushroom slices are arranged to make a

The emphasis on dishes requir-ing care and slow cooking has attracted a loyal French clientele as well as the Anglo-Saxons. For example, there are two succulent chicken dishes (made from farm chickens, already a definite plus.

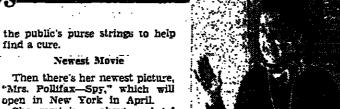

For the gratin de roisille, a hen is gently posched in a bouil-lon, boned and cut into parrow strips. The meat is set on a bod of cooked rice, heaped with musiroom slices, napped with cream and grainfeed.

Also recommendable is the poule sautée à l'estragon. chicken, after being sautecd, is allowed to simmer in a white wine sauce, enriched with cream. The generous dosage of tarragon provides the personality.

The French are particularly fond of a provincial dish. rouelle de veau des Causses. A knuckle of veal is cooked slowly in white wine with lots of onlons and perfumed with thyme. It is accompanied by potato pancakes, spiced with a suggestion of garlic and sweet herbs. This is a specialty of Mr. Faure's native region of Cahors. Local wine from Cahors is the suggested wine.

Speculation Grows of Rate Cuts Elsewhere in Europe, Britain

PARIS, March 31.—All across Europe today, speculation was growing that interest rates in other inflation-worried capitals would have to come down following the West German move. Particular stress was put on England, where changes traditionally are announced on Thursdays. The discount rate there is at 7 percent and has been attracting voluminous flows of

Also prominently mentioned was France, where AP-Dow Jones reported the Banque de France absorbed about $300 million in March supporting the value of the dollar. The dollar today closed at its lowest level in 19 months-5.513275 francs as funds came into the country seeking higher earning power. The French bank rate is now at 6 1/2 percent, about a point over domestic money market rates.

On Frankfurt foreign exchange markets, however, the dollar closed at about 3.6300 today, unchanged from yesterday, indicating that the German rate cuts have initially had no effect whatever. Near the close, quotes as low as 3.6295, five points below the Bundesbank's mandatory lower intervention level, were reported.

French Hoist Minimum Wage

The French minimum wage will be increased 1,38 percent to 3.68 francs an hour on April 1 from 3.63 frames, the level in force since Jan. 6, it was announced after a cabinet meeting. The increase is linked with the previously-reported introduction of the new retail price index on April 1. On a monthly basis, the new minimum wage will be 737.53 francs, up from 727.50 francs for 45 hours weekly. The increase directly af-fects about 750,000 industrial and farm workers.

U.S. Oil Reserves Increase

The steady decline in proven U.S. reserves of crude oil and natural gas was reversed last year, but only by the delayed inclusion of major oil and gas discoveries made on Alaska's North Slope in 1968. As of Dec. 31, 1970, proven U.S. crude oil reserves totaled 39 billion barrels, up 9.4 billion barrels from a year earlier, the American Petroleum Institute reported. But that includes 9.6 billion barrels in crude oil discovered in the vast Prudhoe Bay fields in Alaska. the balance of the country, additions to crude reserves again failed to keep pace with production. The institute also reported that only 34 U.S. oilfields had spare producing capacity of 5,000 barrels a day or more at the end of last

British Auto Sales Up in January

New auto sales in Great Britain rose 21 percent in January, and British motor manufacturers and importers expect to report sharply higher sales in February and March, because of the nine-week-old strike at U.S.-owned Ford Motor Ltd. Figures released by the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders show that 101,739 autos were sold in January, up from 66,146 units in December and 84,310 a year earlier. The foreign share of the market is still increasing. In January, 16,115 foreign cars were sold, compared with 9,638 in January of last year. This gave the foreign cars a 15.84 percent share of the market. Last year at this time they held a share of only 11.45 percent.

Factory Orders Gain in U.S.

New factory orders in the United States rose 0.5 percent or $276 million in February to a seasonally-adjusted $57.65 billion following January's downward-revised increase of $948 million. This was the fourth straight monthly increase in new orders for manufactured products. Durable goods orders advanced $35 million to $31.44 billion and nondurable orders climbed by $241 million to $26.21 billion. Manufacturing inventories dropped 0.2 percent or $246 million to a seasonally-adjusted $99.56 billion.

Japanese Urged to Spur Sluggish Economy

TOKYO, March 31 (Reuters). The Federation of Economic Organizations (Keidanren) called on the Japanese government today to take strong fiscal and monetary measures in order to stimulate the country's sluggish economy.

Keidanren president Korogo Uemura, at a conference with Finance Minister Takeo Fukuda, urged increased fiscal expendiand another cut in the bank rate.

A Keidanren spokesman said the current economic slowdown in the economy is more serious than expected, with the current growth rate estimated at less than 5 percent in real terms. They traced the present slowdown to the government's credit April to March-Japan's reserves squeeze, which they felt was maintained for too long despite repeated warnings from business

The spokesman also said capi-

Snia Omits Dividend

MILAN, March 31 (Reuters) .-Snia Viscosa said today it proposed to omit a dividend for 1970. It paid 130 lire (about 21 U.S. cents) gross in 1969.

The company said it made neither a profit nor a loss in 1970, but closed in balance after depreciation of 15.38 billion lire ($24.6 million). It made a net profit of 7.34 billion lire in 1969. Group turnover fell 23 percent from 351 billion lire in 1969, due mainly to lower returns from the textile division, where turnover dropped 13 percent. Labor and other costs also rose sharply. These problems were only partially offset by the improved results from the plastics, engineering and other divisions, the company said.

HOW WE MAKE

W.E. Hutton has a simple formula for moving ahead -by improving both the quality and the depth of the services we provide for our clients.

Here are some specifics: In the past five years, W.E. Hutton International has nearly doubled in size. We've grown from five to nine overseas offices and increased our Representatives from 20 to 40. Today, we are still growing and intend to continue this Included in our broad range of services available to investors is Portfolio Analysis, Special Situation Studies and the Underwriting of both U.S. corporate and Eurocurrency securities.

Whatever your investment interest, we believe you will benefit from the services of W.E. Hutton International, Inc., and you are cordially invited to contact any of our foreign offices.

BRIDGE.

By Alan Truscott

The American Contract Bridge Leagues' spring nationals, played recently in Atlanta, were the second biggest such championships ever held. During the 10 days, 9,706 tables were in play, a figure topped only by the spring event in New York in 1968, when there were 13,538 tables.
About 25,000 deals were played, and one of the most interesting is shown in the diagram. Most East players opened the bidding with one diamond. A few, however, bid one club for no good reason and this had an impact on the opening lead.

When South jumped to four hearts, North had to restrain himself from showing his fine spade suit. He reluctantly concluded that his partner's hearts were likely to be even better than his own spades.

Influenced by his partner's opening bid, West led the club seven, and the defenders took the first two tricks in that sult. West was in difficulty.

If he had returned a black card,

South would have discarded two losers on dummy's winners, finesses in diamonds—and gone down. He would have made the normal play of the ace and queen of hearts, hoping for a threethree split, and the defense would have made two trump tricks. With some misgivings, West shifted to the diamond eight, ten and tack The declarer worked out that the normal play of the ace and queen of hearts at this point was doomed to fail. Even if the suit obligingly divided three-three, the defenders could put him back on lead with the third round of trumps. He would then have to lead diamonds from his own hand, with only a faint hope that the

THE PERENNIAL AVANT-GARDE

By Gerald Sykes. Preface by Laurence Durrell, Prentice-Hall. 239 pp. $6.95.

Reviewed by Grace Glueck

DON'T let the title of Gerald Sykes's new book fool you. The avant-garde, as he sees it, is by no means perennial, since it was born in 19th-century France and is now all but dead. Once geared to exploration and discovery, it has deserted its ionely outposts for an easy trip down the gallets of the Establishment. And where the arts that it led once created soulsustaining myths, they have today become trivialized by the head-over-heart values of our techno-urban society.

To please collectors, painter now pursue mono-imagery that follows an explainable historical line. The theater plays to the bourgeois aspirations of its audience, which treats it as a business that must make profits.
Musicians have become overspecialized and precious, their work steadily disaffiliating from roots in "liturgy and folk song."
Writers, their wordpower preempted by advertising and the media, have become "unimportant and ornamental." - Architects give their clients only what they bargain for, "copycat sheephuddle buildings that insult your eyes."

Sykes delivers these punditries on the plight of the avant-garde in a curiously schizophrenic book that alternates fictional episodes with think pieces, each apparently intended to illuminate the other. In the stories, which make small pretense of fictionalizing (the architect-sculptor Tony Smith, for instance, appears in the guise of an artist named Michelangelo Jones), a group of non-dimensional characters sits around asking wide-eyed questions about the arts as battle sounds from the 1968 student revolt at Columbia University are heard offstage. With Sykes (in his own persona) serving as their mentor, they are given to drop-ping ideas from—and flattering him on the basis of-his earlier works, a device that I find rather touching. The essays—asides to the reader, really—present Sykes's thoughts straight out. The author, a three-time novelist, among other things, says he has chosen the fiction-cum-essay format to accommodate both "readers who like stories about action and those who like commentary about stories about action." The something-for-everybody device really doesn't work, and what we have here, essentially, are two separate books.

Sykes sees as a prime cause for the poor state of the arts the crosion of belief, the difficulty of sustaining the faiths and myths that once kept us going—a condition perhaps sympby the fact that every one has entered the "mythmaking newspapers. magazines, TV magazines, TV shows, films, political parties, religious groups and propaganda services." Moreover, the disbelief is compounded by the "overintellectual power drive" of our technological society that supports the dominance of thought over feeling. (From the also stems air poliution, contemination of waters, misuse of language in the media teen drug taking, and urban brutal, zation of agricultural folk.)

it's "resacratization," a word on which Sykes is very high. What which Sykes is very mgn. What he means by fir that to find 160 March and create new myths of affect. The coming power, those who practice for point the arts must go back to the many many treating we list instrument with mystery and fire 3cl erence." Painters must "breet free from the narrowness of a stheticism and find images in esthericism and Ind images in an experiences. Musicians must perfect their work, "if must it is to regain its capacity to most to us in our lumeliest and most to the Equitical moments." Writers most longer feeding on older liferators in the furnishment of the court of the as did their avant-garde ances the game tors, must "recognize their unitary to restablish their relevance by the game stablish their relevance by the game stablish their relevance by the pain and bother of daily life." Such minds might give us new myths that would reverse the direction of the technological society. Such minds might show us how to make the best from the worst. Of course, it's unlikely that they could make us listen. And when we did the chances are that we would distort what they said."

So much for the burden of Jack imp this rambling book, which Sykes 1500 Mark describes in an introductory note 1500 Mark st Charge as an attempt to guide the reader. through the art wars. PHILADELPHIA, March 31 (WP).-Jack Ramsay, coach of the Philadelphia 76ers, cried for tight officiating before last night's National Basketball Association Eastern semi-final playoff game against the Baltimore Bullets. Remsey got it, but not with the results he expected.

The Bullets stayed in the game at the foul line during the first half before pulling away early in the fourth quarter for a 120-105 victory in the Spectrum be-

Ramsay complained about the Bullets getting away with too much contact in the earlier "This might decide the karate championship of the world," he said. "We'll be in there slugging. And it might come to that."

"Coach Ramsay speaks with a forked tongue," said Bullet coach Gene Shue. "What he wants to do is take advantage of his superior depth. I'd do it too if I was in his situation."

The Bullets did get in foul trouble. Gus Johnson played only ten minutes of the first half and Wes Unseld picked up his fifth foul in the third minute of the second half. The 76ers, however, committed 23 fouls in the first half. The Bullets converted 34 of 40 free throws to tie at halftime, 62-all, despite being outscored by eight field goals.

U.S. Loses, Sweden Upset by West Germany

Germany upset Sweden, 2-1, and the United States lost to Finland, 7-3, tonight in the world ice hockey championships. The combined results mean that the U.S. squad will have to beat the Germans by at least six goals Friday to avoid being relegated to the eight-nation B group in the 1972

The Americans are playing their first year in the A group after going undefeated through the B group in 1970.

After its fine effort against the Soviet world champions last night, ending in a 7-5 defeat, the young U.S. team was obviously exhausted against the Finns, who had benefited from a rest day.

Finland's Veli-Pekka Ketola, one of the biggest men in the championships at 6-feet-3, 207 pounds, scored three goals and assisted on another. Ilpo Koskela had two goals and an assist.

Don Ross gave the United States a quick lead in the first period on an assist from another defenseman, Tom Mellor. But the Finns took control with three goals in a row before Jim Mc-Elmury got one back. Then the Finns ran in four more before young Henry Boucha scored to reduce the deficit to 7-3.

The loss by Sweden eliminated its chance of catching the Soviet Union, who lead third-place Sweden by six points. Czechoslovakia is second, four points behind Russia's 15.

It was the 29th time the Swedes and the Germans have met in ice hockey. The Germans had lost 26 games, won one and tied one—before today's dramatic upset came along. The last time the Germans defeated the Swedes was in 1928.

MADRID, March 31 (AP) .- The title fight between world superwelterweight boxing champion Carmelo Bossi of Italy and Spanish challenger Jose Hernandez will probably take place here either April 29 or 30, promoter Jose Maria Losa said.

The fight was called off when Italy's Serafino Lucherini was refused a permit by his federa-tion to fight European lightweight champion Miguel Velazquez of Spain in another bout on the card.

A physician said that when Bossi was told of the postponement, the fighter suffered a

May Added to Reds' Injury List

ST. PETEPSBURG, Fla., March 31 (NYT).-The Cincinnati Reds lost another key player last night when Lee May damaged the ligaments in his left knee in a collision with Tim Foll of the New York Mets and was sent back to Cincinnati for extended treat-

May, a 28-year-old first baseman who hit 34 home runs last year, was injured in the first inning of a game that the Reds eventually won, 6-3, and was carried from the field on a stretcher. The Reds, the National League champions of 1970, already have lost Bob Tolan, their center fielder with a torn tendon in the heel; Dave Concepcion, a short-stop, with a torn ligament in the humb, and Jim Merritt and Wayne Simpson, two of the lead-ing pitchers on the team, who are trying to recover from sore arms.

So there was not much joy surrounding the Big Red Machine last night even though it rolled to its eighth victory in ten games and mauled Jerry Koosman en route. In seven innings, the Reds got ten hits and four earned runs off the Met left-hander and in 31 innings this spring, Koosman has been whacked for 34 hits and

While the Koosman puzzle remained, the Mets solved another ritching problem when they trad-ed Dean Chance and Bill Denehy to the Detroit Tigers for Jerry Robertson and $75,000.

Chance, once a 20-game winner with the California Angels and Minnesota Twins, suffered a sore shoulder two years ago. But the Mets paid Cleveland $125,000 for him during their vain race for the pennant last September, worked him only three innings, and then found no room for him this

Twins Trade Zepp

WASHINGTON, March 31 .-Picchers Bill Zepp and Jose Santiago have been assigned to new teams by the Minnesota Twins and Boston Red Sox, respectively, to Zepp's pleasure and Santiago's discomfort.

The Twins sent Zepp to the Detroit Tigers, just the team in which the unsigned hurler had expressed interest, for minorleague infielder Mike Adams and player to be named later.

scheduled ten-round bout with Herschel Jacobs, the 42-year-old Philadelphia grandfather incurred a deep cut over his right eye. After 22 seconds of the third round, the referee, John Lobianco, stopped the bout, awarding a knockout victory to Jacobs.

"It happened in a clinch." Johnson said sadly. "We bumped heads."

"It was a left book off a lab." said Jacobs. "It wasn't a butt." Whatever way it happened Johnson was deemed unfit to continue because of a cut for the first time in his 25-year career. The loss was his 11th against 77 victories. Jacobs was awarded his 25th victory against 17 losses and two draws. It was his tenth knockout triumph.

Santiago, who failed again to come hack from arm surgery two years ago, was sent to Louisville of the International League.

Coleman Recovering

LAKELAND, Fla., March 31 (AP).—Detroit Tiger pitcher Joe Coleman, who suffered a skull fracture when hit by a line drive Saturday, has improved enough to be transferred to Lakeland General Hospital.

Coleman, hospitalized at Bayshore Medical Center in St. Petersburg since his injury, said 'I'm out of the woods and I'll be back with the guys sooner than

Astros Rely on Toy Cannon To Shoot Them to Pennant

COCOA, Fla., March 31 (AP). –Jim Wynn, Houston's toy cannon, goes back to center field this season, and quite possibly the Astros will return to pennant contention in the National League

The two don't necessarily go together but Wynn is the club's big stick and he was an unhappy man last year, although it wasn't reflected by his statistics -a .232 batting average, 27 homers and 88 runs batted in.

Wynn wasn't happy because he was switched from center field to left, but this spring he's back at his old position.

"We think Wynn's attitude is better," says manager Harry Wynn says, "I changed my attitude, but the club also changed some of its." The increased harmony undoubtedly will be passed down from Wynn to the lesser lights, possibly providing the attitude required to make a pennant run as the Astros did in 1969 before finishing 23 games behind firstplace Cincinnati last year. But it not only depends on

Two pitchers, bothered by sore arms in 1970, must come back. They are Don Wilson and Tom Griffin. "It was like trying to function without a heart," Walker said.

"When that happens you can't blame the rest of the body." It's too early to tell about Wilson and Griffin but the former did come back strong at the end of the season for an 11-6 finish. Griffin, however, was unable to put it together at all and finish-

This season Cedeno will patrol left field. The right field spot could go to either Jesus Alou, who hit 305 last season, or Bob Watson, who also can play first or catch and hit 272 last year. The infield is set with Denis Menke moving over from shortstop to first base to make room for Roger Metzger. Joe Morgan's at second and Doug Rader at third. Johnny Edwards is the incumbent catcher but Larry Howard is up from Oklahoma City after hitting .302.

Metzger, acquired from the Chicago Cubs' organization after hitting 270 at Tacoma, is expected to provide a more efficient double play combination and likely will stick as long as his glove carries him.

France Defeats Santos of Brazil, Pele Scores Goal

PARIS, March 31 (UPI).-The combined French club team of St.-Etlenne-Marseilles tonight beat Santos of Brazil, 3-1, in overtime penalty kicks after regulation time had ended in a 0-0 tie.

The game showed Santos as a once-great team now well past their best days. Pele, the king of soccer, was restricted to brief flashes of brilliance and scored his team's penalty of Social Services in Detroit, said that under welfare regulations Simpson had no legal obligation to his family. Simpson's parents were separated in 1966.

Salif Keita of Mali, Josio Skoblar of Yugoslavia and France's Bernard Bosquier netted the penalties for the French as the match, in aid of France's cancer research fund, drew a near-capacity crowd of about 55,000 into Colombes Stadium.

When he signed last June, Simpson was jubilant. "We can have food in the house . . . we didn't even have that a couple of weeks ago," he said at the time. "And I'd like to get them [his family] a new home."

But the jubilation turned to disappointment. One of the first things I did was to splurge on clothes and buy a pink Eldorado," Simpson said. "Now, well, I look at the car and I don't even like it. I mean, I don't like what it represents." Simpson's former coach at Detroit Pershing High School Will Robinson, was against his signing. He felt Simpson was too young and didn't realize the value of money. Simpson admitted he didn't fully understand the terms of the long-term contract.

A similar case involved Simpson's high school teammate, Spencer Haywood, now of the Seattle SuperSonics. Haywood also received a "hardship" contract, reportedly worth $1.9 million, from Denver in 1969 after his sophomore year at college.

But Haywood jumped to Seattle last December, contending that he was not receiving anything near that amount of money from

WASHINGTON—The Japanese have put in a bid for the SST now that it has been turned down by the U.S. Congress. A delegation from Tokyo is in the United States at this moment negotiating for the plans and equipment, and I was fortunate to speak to one of the members. His name is Mr Hakai Samauri and he told me that he thought the Japanese would be able to build two prototypes of the SST by July.

"How much do you think the planes will cost you?" I asked

"We estimate that each plane will cost $79.50, but this includes color television at each seat." "That seems awfully low." I said. "The Americans claimed they couldn't build an SST prototype for less than $7 billion."
Mr. Samauri said: "That is because the Americans are so far behind in miniaturization. feel we can get everything down to size, which will cut costs immesurably.

Bedtime Stories For Children— By Telephone

LONDON, March 31 (AP).-Britain's post office announced today a scheme to relieve harried fathers of that eternal question, "Tell me a bedtime story. Daddy."
It comes into being Friday.

As of then, anyone dialing London 246-8000 or Birmingham 246-800 will receive a six-minute bedtime story about animals brought to life as children see them, such as Peter Rabbit, Reddy Fox, Johnny Chipmunk and Grandfather Frog.

The call will cost two pence. People in England can already phone for the time, a popular record, weather reports. a daily recipe, road conditions, cricket results, and the index and news summary of the financial mar-

We have made studies and we can say that if you had 500 Japanese SSTs flying at one time they would give off as much pollution as 12 pigeons at the Washington Monument."

"I must say." I said, "you peo ple really have this all worked out. How many do you plan to

"Probably only a million in the first year. We don't want to flood the market." "Wait a minute." I soid. "What about the dangers of a sonic boom?"

2. Mary Pickford —In Perspective

In the second of two articles (the first appeared here yester-day), free-lance writer Aliean Harmetz continues her teleplione interview with Mary Pickford, now 78 and confined to her bed at Pickfair, which she and her husband Douglas Fairbanks made the social center of Hollywood in the 1920s. She married Buddy Rogers in 1937. Miss Pickford will soon be seen again on European and American screens in a specially chosen retrospective of her Mary Pickford's title of "America's Sweetheart" and the subliminal memory of long golden curls conjure up stomach-churning images of honey and treacle and spun sugar candy. In reality, Mary Pickford's screen character was spunky, self-sufficient. headstrong and mildly wicked.
